

Office (Wireless)

If you have many laptop users in your office you may want to consider a wireless network, wireless networks can make life much easier for users who take their computers home, or for moving around the office.

Wireless can be added to almost any network with minimal investment.